Travis was rushed to Grady hospital where an operation was performed in hope of saving his life. He was unconscious at a late bour.

Mitchell, who escaped from the scene of the shooting, is being searched for by officers in the surrounding counties sent out by Chief Beavers in an effort to locate the negro. Chief Beavers took personal charge of the hunt and with officers searched the territory surrounding the scene of the shooting but failed to get a trace of Mitchell. Wife Sees Shooting.

Travis, who was sworn in with 31 other men as special officers until the police board can pass on their application, was attracted by Mitchell and several other negroes who were making too much roise and disturbing the residents near the store at 483 Ponce de Leon avenue where the shooting occurred. Mrs. Travis was on the porch and witnessed the shooting of her husband.

The officer pulled his gun and placed a chain around the negro's wrist, according to witnesses. After the chain had been placed about the negro's wrist, Travis placed the gun in the holster. Just at this time the negro snatched the gun from the offi-Continued on Page 16, Column 2.

High School for Boys And Another for Girls, Are Included in Plan

Recommendations Made by Board of Surveyors From Columbia University Followed to the Letter at Meeting of Board Held on Thursday Afternoon.

FOUR JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS FOR CITY, ON TEN-ACRE LOTS EACH, PROPOSED

Plan Adopted Calls for Kindergarten, Six-Grade Grammar School, Three-Grade Junior High, and Three-Grade Senior High—Large Buildings to Be Erected.

Sweeping in the changes and expansion it provides, the complete program of bond issue improvements for Atlanta's school system, as outlined by the special school surveyors, was adopted by the board of education Thursday afternoon in special session.

The following important decisions were reached unanimously: 1. To adopt junior high schools, and erect four, each to be locaed on a tract of approximately ten acres. 2. To establish two great high schools-a boys' high school to be built on a twenty-acre tract on the north side, and a girls' high school located on the south side on a twenty-acre tract. On each of these sites there will be erected an academic building, a technological building and a commercial building, thus preserving the identity of the present high schools.

3. To erect large-type grammar schools containing up to thirty

4. To establish the "K-6-3-3" plan, that is to say, a plan providing for the kindergarten, the six-grade grammar school, the three-grade junior high school, and the three-grade senior high school.

REPORT IS

In the adoption of its program o development the board followed to the letter the recommendation of Dr. G. D. Strayer and Dr. N. L. Engelardt, of the department of research of Columbia university, recently en gaged to survey the school system and eport on its needs. Their recommendations in written form have not yet been placed in Harry Fields Declared the board's hands, but they outlined them in detail at a secret meeting

> The sum of $4,000,000 is available for the purchase of lots, ered equipment of new schools and annexes, and renovations and repairs The board will now proceed in selecting sites and will ask A. Ten Eych Brown, supervising architect and consultant to the board, to begin the preparation of architectural designs. While two great high schools are to take the place of the four present high schools, the identity of each and their separate school activities will be preserved. This was distinctly provided for in the recommendations and by the board. With this end in view the group plan of structures was adopted. Each group will consist of an academic. a technical, and a commercial building, making it possible for a student to still pursue one particular branch of study or all three, greatly broadening the opportunities to high school students. This plan would simply mount to Tech High, Commercial High, Boys' High and Girls' High being moved into buildings of their own. CO-EDUCATION

OPPOSED. In the opinion of the surveyors it would be unwise for Atlanta to establish a co-educational system in the senior schools. They stated that throughout the country there is a tendency away from co-educational high

The program as to grammar schools will be put into effect gradually. It was said that perhaps not more than three or four 30-room grammar schools would be built right away.

The reason why the board acted Thursday in advance of receiving the written recommendations of the survey commission, was to save as much time as possible by beginning such operations as it could, inasmuch as it had received the recommendations orally and the written report was not expected to reach the body before March 1.

"We confidently expect the princi-pals and teachers and the patrons and friends of the schools to give us their co-operation in making our new tem a great success." said Mr. Gaines, "and we believe that they will do

These schools will to some extent relieve both the senior high schools and "In the third place the board adopted the policy of large-typed grammar schools, containing some 30 rooms, to accommodate a maximum of some 1.200 to 1.500 pupils each. It is the idea that each grammar school shall stand in the center of a district with five-eighths of a mile radius. If the five-eighths of a mile radius. • Value of Large School.

"It has been found that there is a greater and finer spirit in a large grammar school than in a smaller one. And the cost of administration is greatly less in the large school. Right here in Atlanta we have found by actual tabulation that it costs twice 28 tual tabulation that it costs twice 2s much per child to maintain a 'small school as it does to maintain a large school, like English Avenue school or Grant Park school. The matter of cost is a tremendous argument. Furthermore a much better type of teaching can be done in a large school than ing can be done in a large school than in a small one. If for instance, we have four first grades in a school the first grade children can be divided firm faith that the boll weevil can be controlled through the use of the proper methods. The big demonstra-tion farm will be operated in co-operation with several of its large clients. The work is planned to show by actual field demonstration that farmers can grow cotton successfully under weevil conditions.

The farm is to be operated in accordance with the best methods, in-cluding farm management, prepara-tion of land, fertilization, cultivation and all kinds of warfare against the

Company's Announcement
In outlining the plans for the establishment of the farm and the methods to be used in its operation, officials of the Armour company, made the following announcement:

"At the outset it is designed to show that by reducing the acreage, and properly preparing the land, more cotton can be grown per acre and the control of the weevil will not be so difficult as when the entire farm area is covered with food for the weevils, The land is to be better prepared, and enough plant food is to be put in the soil to make enough cotton per acre to pay all expense in connection with the control methods, and still leave a bigger margin of profits than farmers have usually gotten from the lands.

"The land is to be cultivated often "The land is to be cultivated often and shallow, and such mechanical measures used as are necessary to hold the weevil in abeyance—such as picking up the weevils and squares, if necessary, but especially to apply the calcium arsenate poisoning with the methods worked out by Director Coad, of the Delta Laboratory, Tallulah. DeLoach In Charge.

"The immediate problem of the weevil control will be in charge of R. J. H. DeLoach, formerly director of the Georgia experiment station, but now director of Armour's bureau of agricultural research, in conjunction with the owner and manager of the estate. Director DeLoach's plan will be to figure with weevil experts as to the exact needs in the way of equipment and materials for this important work aside from the labor and general farm requirements, and plan with the farm operative to place these necessities at the proper time in the hands of some trained expert who has had several years experience fighting the weevil.

"The machines used for dusting the calcium arsenate will be of the size and type best suited for the farm lands on which demonstrations are to be given, and these and the calcium arsenate must be up to the standard researched by the federal and state authorities.

"What most farmers need at this "What most farmers need at this time is more and better evidence that cotton can be grown successfully under weevil conditions. There were thousands of failures with calcium arsenate and other methods of poisoning in 1921 but fortunately most of these can be explained through careless and improper application of the poisons. There is no record of a failure where the methods were followed to the letter, and the officials of the Armour Fertilizer Works have become convinced that there is a great opportunity in these times of distress to join hands with all other agencies in this positive fight against the weevil."

Two High Schools.

"In the fourth place, the board adopted the policy of having two great high schools, or perhaps they might more properly be called secondary schools, one for boys, to be located on the north side of the city, and the other for girls, to be located on the south side of the city. However, it is distinctly provided that said two high schools shall be so constituted as to preserve the identity and the integrity of all of our present high schools. The of all of our present high schools. The idea is that each of these new high schools shall occupy a tract of approximately twenty acres, and that on eac school lot there shall be an academic building, a technological building and a commercial building. Each of our

a commercial building. Each of our present high schools would maintain its identity, its separate school activities would be kept intact and its separate school spirit maintained. This high school plan of course keeps the sexes separate. Co-education in high schools has been found satisfactory in many places, but our school survey expert's advice that it would not be best for Atlanta. Perhaps the fact that we have had separate high schools for boys and girls in Atlanta for so long, and that our Atlanta way has worked so well may have been one more reason which led them to advise its continuance. Furthermore, they tell us that there is now a tendency away from co-education in the high schools. The details of the working out of this from co-education in the high schools. The details of the working out of this new high school idea is of course a matter of administration, but no one need fear that it contemplates that any of our present high schools will be destroyed. Its design, on the other hand, is to preserve them?

"These various new policies of course can not be put fully into operation at once. They are aims toward which the board proposes towork. They will be put into operation gradually as soon as finances and circumstances will permit. Perhams for instances and company than policies of haps, for instance, not more than three or four 30-room grammar schools will be built right away.

Recommended by Surveyors. "All of the above policies were rec-ommended to us by the department of research of Columbia university, which has been making our school survey for us, probably the greatest school ex-perts in the world. Their report has not yet been finished and of course has not been delivered to us, but they have indicated to us in advance what their findings as to the above items would be. And they very earnestly recom-mend the policies which the board has just adopted as outlined above. And they have gone into their reasons very exhaustively and convincingly with the board.

"Furthermore the board has given much consideration to the questions.

It has considered them in two lengths sessions. And besides, the individual members of the board have been considering them severally for months. And it has adopted the above recommends most heartily and with great unanimity.

Superintendent Sutton is heartily in favor of these new policies and warmly supported them in the meet-ings. The whole school administration likewise is back of them.
"The board of education has acted by Dr. Strayer and Dr. Englehart, for the reason that we had been informed by them what their recommendations would be as to these matters, and we can save much time by beginning such operations as we can, in line with recommendations already furnished us.

We have had to lose much time, and we are anxious that the schools shall as quickly as possible begin to realize the benefits of the bond issue. "We confidently expect the principals and teachers and the patrons and pais and teachers and the pattern friends of the schools to give us their hearty co-operation in making our newly adopted policies and our im-proved system a great success. And proved system a great success. we believe that they will do this."

Tribute By Ashby Jones. Dr. Ashby Jones paid a high tribute the response of the colored people the five-way appeal and voiced the sentiment that their generosity was always in the forefront whenever the question of giving to the cause of charity was raised.

Dr. Jones had returned to make a special address to the campaign work-ers, and stated that his sense of obligation as a minister would not permit him to relax until the campaign has been brought to a close and every dollar raised. He backed up his opinion in a practical way by doubling the substantial subscription he had already made to the campaign last week. "Surely Atlanta has the money to "Surely Atlanta has the money to give if she will," said Dr. Jones. "The very fact that an economic situation give if she will," said Dr. Jones. "The very fact that an economic situation does exist in Atlanta today that makes it impossible for many people to give who have always given to such causes in the past and wold like to give to the five-way opportunity, causes a double responsibility to rest on the shoulders of those who can give. There are many, I am afraid, who are trying to 'get away' with just as little as they can in the hope of easing their

Director Brownlee stated that this was the most successful campaign that had been waged in Atlanta since the war. That with so few workers a truly remarkable record had been the war. That with so few workers a truly remarkable record had been made.

"One hundred thousand dollars will have been subscribed by Friday night. To get that has taken some of the hardest work the men and women on the campaign have ever put in. When we started, we found scores of people who were wholly unfamiliar with the work of our social service agencies. By this time, though, every wide-awake citizen of Atlanta knows what they are for, what they are doing and the great purpose of the five-way opportunity. The remaining $75,000 should be comparatively easy to raise. We expect many large individual gifts from public-spirited Atlantans and many large subscriptions from industrial organizations and business firms. Then there will be many increased subscriptions from early givers.

"We are going over the top and we are going to let other cities know that Atlantan never falls—that when she atarts anything, she sees it through to a successful finish. We are in this campaigs to the end and we are not going to let up until every cent of the total fund has been raised and our welfare agencies provided with the money to continue their great work through 1922."

Economic conditions and problems confronting England, augmented with humorous stories of the justly famous lack of humor on the part of the Englishman, were related by Frank Foster, well-known Atlantan, who has for the last four years made his home in London. Mr. Foster asserted that the economic conditions of England today were in much worse condition than in the United States. He illustrated this assertion by depicting the prorata of assertion by depicting the prorata of government taxes paid by citizens of that country, which, he declared, in many instances, left the person with a large income with only 10 per cent of his wealth after the government tax was deducted.

homes at fair prices, if the soldier bonus bill is passed, was asked Thursday afternoon of the members of the Atlanta real estate board by O. B. Mitchell, commander of the local branch of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The meeting was held in the Peacock cafe at 1 o'clock, Ward Wight, president, presiding.

After telling of the history of the organization, of its formation in 1899, its large personnel and its desire to secure fair dealings for ex-service men, Mr. Mitchell discussed the bonus bill, and especially that clause proposing to give homes to ex-service men. He said that when store dealers during the world war found that soldiers had to wear black ties when they visited the city, the prices of they visited the city, the prices of those ties immediately jumped from 25 cents to $1.50.

Says Prices Will Jump.

Says Prices Will Jump.

"Now we don't want the same thing to happen," continued Mr. Mitchell, "if the government decides to give homes to soldiers. If the bill passes with the home-for-the-soldier clause included, the price of property and homes will immediately jump upwards unless some pressure is brought to bear. My hope is that the real estate men here, and the board as a body, will take some action, if the bill should be passed, to prevent a rise in prices so that the ex-service men will get their money's worth."

Fred Jeter asked Mr. Mitchell whether the money for the homes whether the money for the homes would be given to the ex-service men or whether the government would buy the homes themselves and give them to the men. Mr. Mitchell replied that he did not know exactly, but that under either condition the prices would imput if preserve is not brought would jump if pressure is not brought

John Scott then declared he wor not speak in favor or against the bill, because opinion throughout the coun-try is divided, but he added that he would do everything possible to see

Colonel E. J. Parker, of New York, men's social secretary, will be the main speaker at services to be held in the Baptist Tabernacle Sunday evening. Colonel Parker has given more than 35 years of active service to the work in which he is now engaged. He has made hundreds of photographic records of slum conditions in great cities of this country. In addition, he also has with him moving pictures of the work done by the Salvation Army overseas during the great World war. His lecture, "Problems of the Poor," will be illustrated with actual photographs in the form of moving pictures.

That civilization is not slipping backward as a result of the world war and relentless commercial competition but is rather going forward along a difficult path to an even higher and more sound foundation for mankind, is the message which Colonel Parker will bring to the people of Atlanta.

Parker Brings Message.

Parker Brings Message. "It is interesting to note," said Colonel Parker, "that many of our foremost thinkers and writers agree

Colonel Parker, "that many of our foremost thinkers and writers agree that the world is growing worse; that civilization is slipping back to savagery; that because of an uncompromising competition in business everywhere, men have become accustomed to destroying each other in their greedy desire for supremacy and gain. "Such ideas are put forward by historians, whose good motives and scholarly attainments cannot be questioned, but who are just as wrong in their theories as I would be if I declared the sun should not loom over the horizon again. They are well-intentioned men, who are so obsessed with the signboards of history, ancient and modern, that they have succumbed entirely to pessimism and would have us understand that civilization is on the toboggan slide headed for utter chaos and destruction.

"The voice of the poor may, I think, be listened to with impunity at this juncture, because most men are not so crazy about acquiring wealth through business that they will sacrifice everything else worth while—all their ideals and high standards. Happiness can be attained without riches. It is when one group of men. constituting what we are all pleased to call a government, lead an entire nation into conflict in order to obtain advantages they would not otherwise have in trade or commerce, that the tide of human misery rises high. That day is fast disappearing.

Ends Ford Hearing.

Chairman Kahn announced tonight that Mr. W. B. Mayo, chief engineer for the Ford company, would be heard following the conclusion of the statements to be made by the Alabama Power Company and his testimony would end the committee's investigation, for the present time at least, of the Ford proposal.

Under the program decided upon by the committee in executive session today, hearings will be initiated next today, hearings will be initiated next week on the power company's offer. The exact time, Mr. Kahn explained, depended upon the length of arguments to be made by the company's attorneys and the statements to be made by Mr. Mayo. He estimated, however, that these would be disposed of by the middle of next week.

Meanwhile the committee will suspend work of drafting a report for the house on the Ford offer and wait until hearings on all proposals Secretary Weeks might send to congress on Muscle Shoals are concluded. At that

Of HomeBuilding

Movements to stimulate interest in home building does benefit every line of business, and not merely certain classes, according to an article on the subject in a current issue of The Real Estate Journal.

The article should be of interest to Atlantans, said R. W. Evans, chairman of the "Own Your Home" committee of the Atlanta Real Estate board, which is conducting an 'own your home' campaign here, because your home' campaign here, because it touches on conditions existing in the housing situation in Atlanta. In referring to the article in question, Mr. Evans said that it expresses

The article in part follows:
The average merchant is apt to think that an increase in building construction will bring profit only to the building interests, but such is not a fact, says Wharton Clay, commissioner of the Metal Manufacturers' association. It is up to toose in the building business to show the business man why he should get into the "own home movement;" why he should take an active part in "own your home expositions," buy mortgages or mortgage bonds, and in other ways seek to stimulate interest in home-building.

mortgages or mortgage bonds, and in other ways seek to stimulate interest in home-building.

When rents went up, where did the tenant get the money to pay the landlord? As rents continue to claim even higher he must continue to pay his increased rent out of his income. This is where the insurance man, the furniture man, the clothing man and all other merchants have lost out, and explains to a large degree the "buyers' strike."

Those of the building business owe it to she this matter thoroughly understood by the merchants of our cities. They must be the ones to start it, and the merchants and other influential business men will surely co-operate if they realize how farreaching into our own weifare is the healthy normal growth of the building industry.

The furniture industry, under the guidance of Robert Jordan, is blazing the way with a million-dollar caugnaign to urge home-building. Other industries, such as electric fixtures, public service copporations, floor covering, and many others similarly affected, will undertake national campaigns as soon as they are convinced of the opportunity.

These are some of the things, said Mr. Evans today, in discussing the progress being made in the "own your home campaign" being conducted by the Atlanta real estate board, that we wish to impress on the merchants and business men of Atlanta. It will benefit everyone; those who build and those who have business interests in Atlanta, and we all come in one of those two classes.

Plan Exposition.

"It is largely." said Mr. Evans, "for this reason that we plan to hold such an elaborate own your home such an elaborate 'own your home exposition' as a climax to the campaign. Of course," he added, "the exposition is a necessary part of the campaign, for it is there that the people of Atlanta will be given the opportunity of seeing in the concrete all that is newest and best that goes into the building and furnishing of a home, but an object of the exposition equally important will be the opportunity it will give the business men and merchants to take an active part in the campaign, and to profit thereby. "While the co-operation of the business men generally in the campaign will go far toward assuring its succession."

will go far toward assuring its suc-cess, the exposition will give them an opportunity to demonstrate individual-ly their services or wares to the thousands who will undoubtedly attend the show, which will be held in the Audi-torium May 8 to 13, inclusive.
"The Auditorium has been divided into display spaces which will be allotted to dealers in everything that goes into the building, equipping and furnishing of a home, and a number furnishing of a home, and a number of dealers have already procured space reservations for their displays. It is our aim to give every merchant in the city an opportunity to have a display in the Auditorium during the exposition, but we hope that those who are interested in the movement will not wait for a personal invitation to take part. The campaign is demanding so much of the time and attention of the members of the committee, that a personal call on every dealer in the city would be an impossibility, and we hope those who are planning to have displays at the show will get in touch with the campaign committee at the Atlanta Real Estate board's headquarters, in the Healey building, or give us a telephone call so that a member of the committee

$11.357 VERDICT AWARDED TO BANK IN NEW ORLEANS

A verdict for $11,357 in favor of the Marine Bank and Trust Company, of New Orleans, La., which is suing the Palmetto bank, of Palmetto, Ga., for the "use" or benefit of Shepard & Gluck, cotton brokers of New Orleans, was rendered by Judge Samuel H. Sil-ley, in the civil division of the federal ley, in the civil division of the federal court.

The "use" was based on a check drawn and signed by R. C. Batcheldor, vice president of the Palmetto bank, and mailed to Shepherd & Gluck to reimburse them for their payment of a draft drawn by J. F. Bullard, independent agent, to the Palmetto bank. It was brought out in the testimony that the draft was paid and assurance was telegraphed from the Palmetto bank that Bullard had deposited $10,000 to the credit of Shepherd & $10,000 to the credit of Shepherd &

Administration leaders didn't wish the sales tax proposed in the first place, knowing it couldn't pass—and President Harding was cognizant of the situation when he proposed it. Now it appears that the house ways and means committee will probably report out a bonus bill merely authorizing the president to use funds available from savings in army and navy curtailments, collections on foreign obligations, etc.

Congress won't pass the sales tax and can't think of anything else that would produce funds immediately. Whatever is proposed will certainly be discussed at vast length before it is passed, if it is passed, and whatever is passed, if it proves contrary to Harding's best judgment, will be subject to his veto.

"One of the big failures of Georgia has been her neglect in advertising her products. The finest pecans I ever tasted have been furnished me on this tour and they were grown in Georgia. There is no reason why every drug store and candy shop in the country should not be handling small packages of pecans similar to the California raisin packages. The splendid opportunity in the production and marketing of yams is being missed because the growers make no concerted effort to dispose of their crops in the foreign markets. "One thing which has impressed me

"Oh, Adele, how awful!"

Jeanne's exclamation of horror was absolutely sincere. Not only was she all sympathy for Adele, but also she was deeply moved by the realization that she could do nothing to help, and that Adele was reposably counting on that Adele was probably counting on her for immediate assistance. Of course Adele thought that Jeanne, with the Barstowe millions behind her, would lend a helping hand in return for the favor which Adele had done her in the lean days before the former's marriage.

There was silence for several minutes while the two walked along to-ward the avenue. Adele in swagger, low-heeled, thick-soled walking shoes, swung carelessly along through the black slush. Jeanne, in French-heeled pumps, picked her way distastefully; but she was almost glad that Adele's determination to walk had saved her the price of a taxi. The Barstowe car would pick her up at Vic's office at the end of the day, and the dollar or two in her purse would be saved for some more pressing need.

She smiled to herself bitterly when She smiled to herself bitterly when she caught herself thus counting pennies. Not since she had come to New York had she given a thought to her expenditures. In the few brief months of her reign as a woman of wealth and fashion, she had lived like a princess, and in that short time she had almost forgotten little Jane Dare, who used to walk through the rain to the schoolhouse to save 5 cents bus fare. Embarrassing Silence.

Adele seemed to be waiting for Jeanne to say something. Jeanne knew what it was; Adele was waiting, for a Profer of assistance.

And she could say nothing, do nothing. She faced a worse fate than Adele's, for farther up the avenue Madame Julie waited like a tiger ready to spring, and Jeanne had nothing to took into the hungry made.

toss into the hungry maw.

Finally Adele said hesitatingly:
"I say, in view of the neat little wreck of my fortunes, could you conveniently return the money I loaned you some time ago? Of course I hate you some time ago: Or course I hate to ask it, but my pride is rather blunt and dull by this time. You know it's not easy to havel ived all your life in semi-luxury and then suddenly be turned into the cold, cold world. I felt this coming for a long while. I dare say that's why I had my eye on Vic and other rich young men, but "it to late now to make a wealthy. is too late now to make a wealthy marriage. That little loan I made you has turned out to be something of a nest egg; maybe I can come back on that. I'll get Dick Canby to play the market with it, and who knows? I may make a tenstrike."

"Adele," Jeanne hesitated, then took the plunge. "I can't pay you back."

Adele turned incredulous eyes upon her.

"Can't!" she echoed.

"Well—that is—not right this minute." amended Jeanne hastily.

Adele gave a little relieved laugh.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's asked Jeanne.

"Oh. by the end of the week will be time enough. But I've got to have it then. Jeanne, I've positively got to!"

The essential minimum points which she stressed in order to qualify for entrance into the federation were: 1. Hygienic plumbing; 2. Walls, ceilings, floors must be finished so as to be washable; 3. Examination of child by physician before entrance; 4. Examination of children by physician once a month, stripped if possible; 5. Daily examination of each child by matron or superintendeht before admission to the nursery; 6. Investigation of cases before entrance; 7. Continued investigation of cases where exceptional; 8. All children should be given two meals a day; 9. Dietary recommended by federation should be used; 10. All children should wear nursery aprons, and infeated deceadin nursery clothes should wear nursery aprons, and in-fants be dressed in nursery clothes where possible: 11. The clothes of each child should be hung in a well ventilated closet far enough apart to ventilated closet far enough apart to avoid contact (mesh bags are recommended; 12. Separate towels, spoons, etc., for each child obligatory; 13. Only eight infants or sixteen runabouts should be under the care of one attendant. A kindergarten teacher should have an assistant for more than thirty children; 14. Simple records thirty children; 14. Simple records of each child must be kept. Annual report should be printed following sug-gestions of federation.

Mrs. Dodge Talks.

"The first nursery in the United States was established 70 years ago in Troy, N. Y." said Mrs. Dodge, "and it is still in existence. In 1856 New York city followed, with Philadelphia ranking third. Today there are 610 being run in the country. New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia formed the neuclei for the federation, which has been divided into 7 centers, with 15,000 to 20,000 women caring for 30,000 children. I believe in the fundamental principles that when a board woman undertakes to take the place of a mother for 8 or 9 hours a day, should be responsible for the moral, physical, mental and relizious side of each child.

The state of Texas has 5 nurseries in Dallas, 3 in San Antonio, 2 in Houston, and 1 in Sherman. The national center in New York is general supervisor for the country, and will stand ready to solve any problem in which the southern center is dubious. Each center chairman becomes a member of center chairman becomes a member of the executive board. The nurseries will be compelled to join the center in which located, before becoming a member of the federation. By this method, it will be understood that the nursery has qualified in the fourteen minimum points, stated Mrs. Dodge. National Conference. The national conference will take place May 2, in New York city in Town hall. There will be delegates from the seven centers in the United States as well as two delegates from England, two from France and others from Italy, Holland, Switzerland, Porto Rico, Hawaii, Philippine Is-lands, and Japan, where there are 40 nurseries. Mrs. A. A. Braswell, had arranged the program, with "Pottery" as the topic for study. "American Potters and Their Triumphs," was the caption under which Mr. Mack unfolded the beauties of the potter's art. The speaker showed easy familiarity with his subject and a genuine appreciation for the "lovely" in this particular art. Mr. Mack exhibted examples of the potter's art, from the cruder ones of the Indian to the exquisite vases from the Rookwood and Lennox potteries in our own country; and the beautiful works of Josiah Wedgwood and Lord Dalton in England. He also had several attractive works from the students at Sophie Newcomb, in New Orleans.

Dr. T. Poole Maynard dealt with pottery from the industrial side and was most convincing in his statements. Mrs. Charles Jerome is chairman of this denstraent of the club. Mrs. Charles Jerome is chairman of this department of the club.

THE INDEPENBENT WOMAN

is one of the brightest jewels which adorns our modern, economic system. But too often this independence is gained at the cost of health, and the wage-earning woman struggles through her duties, a prey to nervousness, backache and despondency. Does not her independence then become more of a burden than a joy? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped many such women to regain their zest in life, and will help many more.

A Wife on Leave

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAP-PENED.

Richard Brabant, a successful young lawyer, has suggested a year's leave of absence for his bored wife.

Sally, hoping that she will learn enough of life to become less a butterfly and more of a helpmate. She begins by meeting a childhood friend, Keith Gilbert, always labeled "Dangerous," while on her way to tea with Barbara Lane, an old-fashioned wife, and Patricia Loring, a modern flapper, who is out to capture Gilbert, and is much surprised when she meets Sally at a big costume ball with him.

REFLECTED GLORY.

Sally's brain whirled as she faced Patrica; she was uncomfortably aware of the girl's keen eyes and critical thoughts.

"Nice party, isn't it?" Keith Gilbert came to her rescue in time to save her the blunder of explaining her presence at the ball and so seeming to put herself in the wrong. "Why didn't you tell us last night that you were coming. We'd have made it a party."

Patricia looked nonplussed. "You didn't say that you were going to be here," she protested, but Keith's laughing insistence that he had done so disarmed her. She introduced the man with her, a clean-cut young chap whom Sally liked instantly; something about the straight line of his brows and the uncompromising cut of his and the uncompromising cut of his jaw reminded her of Dick.

"Why don't we all have supper to-gether?" urged Keith, as they walked back to the box. "Or are you with someone else?"

someone else?"

"No—Gibbs and I fust wandered over here for a while: we'd been at the Mortons—the deadliest coming-out party I ever suffered through," declared Pats, fishing in her partner's pocket for her lip stick. "How'd you like the color of this, Sally?" and she held it out for them all to see. "Fanchon's imported a lot of them—rouge, gowns and lipsticks to match; Dad told me he'd send me to the country with Aunt Sye if he caught me using this, so Gibbs has to park it in his pocket for me. Going to dance with me, Keith?"

Sally, finding herseif toddling with Gibbs Hunter, studied him for a moment, and wondered what could be Pats' charm for him. He seemed too earnest for her determined flippancy, too conservative for her score of the conventions. Pats had known Keith Gilbert twenty-four hours—and called him by his first name, asked him to dance with her, and then openly embraced him with the music as an excuse. "If I get that chance, I'll go mad with joy and faint on the white house steps," she answered frankly. "It's about time I got somewhere with something serious, isn't it? By the way, do you know these men—Graham Brown and Guy Selden—" she introduced them with a casual wave of her hand, and Sally, talking with them behind her very attractive back, wondered anew. She had heard her husband say that he'd give a good dealt to meet Graham Brown, who held high finance in the hollow of his hand—and she was chatting with the great man now, assuring him that she knew he didn't dance so badly as he claimed to, and that she'd sive the one after the next for him. "Fer God's sake, Alexander, don't mek light of me ternight. I kain't endure hit. Hevn't ye got no idee how master much I loves ye? Don't ye see thet ther two of us war made fer each other? Once more Alexander began to feel that old uncertainty of reeling senses. His intonations were caresses. His eyes were beacons, and she took a tight hold on herself-for despite the hypnotic spell that he was weaving about her, a voice within her cautioned, "Be steady!"

The room had grown warm. Halloway, in his impetuous fashion, ripped off his coat, flinging it on the floor, and stood with his great shoulders and chest bulking mightily beneath his flaunel shirt. Under the hurricane sweep of his love-making the girl from time to time closed her eyes in an effort to hold to her waning steadiness. This was one of those occasions when the fire in her responded to the fire in him; when she felt, with a sense of deep misgiving, that she could not resist him.

He slowly extended both arms and stood upright in gladiatorial strength and compelling erectness. "Now ye're a-comin' inter my arms-of yore own accord-because we was made fer one another.'

Something in her heart was driving her irresistably into those outstretched her irresistably into those outstretched arms and something else—though that ye even know—fer sure—that he's a was growing weaker, she thought— mountain man?" was growing weaker, she thoughtkept whispering its warning, "Steady! Go steady! This is a spell but it isn't love."

Her glance, ranging in desperation, fell on his coat at her feet, and with an instinct of grasping at any pretext for a moment of thought and reprieve, she exclaimed:

'Give me thet coat, Jack !" Having breathlessly gone that far, she was able to finish with greater self-command. "Ther linin's in sheer rags. I kin be mendin' thet wust place by the sleeve thar-whilst ye talks."

Alexander leaned forward and picked the thing up. She had not yet begun to sew-her fingers lacked the needful steadiness-but she was making a pretense of studying the torn lining. Then suddenly she gave a violent start, and from her lips explosively broke the one word, "Jack !" In that moment something had happened to Alexander. Some thought or nstinct or fact had brought her up short-transformed her out of weakness into strength, and when she spoke again it was with the selfcontainment of one who has been near the cliff's edge but who has definitely drawn back.

"I hed hit in head ter ask ye a question," she announced, slowly, "but "I don't aim ter be fo'ced, Jack," she quietly announced. "Ye boasts thet ye kin mek me come into yore arms. If ye kin—all right—but hit won't be ternight."

Two weeks after Jack Halloway had started on his alleged trip across the Virginia boundary. Alexander set out upon a journey. She was going to Perry Center and meant to be there for some days, since matters concerning Perry Center and meant to be there for some days, since matters concerning the farm were to be discussed with her uncle. Perry Center was a hub from which swung a limited perimeter of rich farmling lands. This fertile area was an oasis; within its narrow confines men could raise not only the corn which constituted the staple of their less fortunate neighbors, but the richer crop of wheat as well.

When Alexander set out upon her ten-mile walk hefting the pack that held her necessaries for the trip, Larry O'Keefe materialized, grinning amiably from a clump of laurel. It was characteristice of Jerry to so appear from nowhere.

She gave it over to him, and since the trail there was narrow and thorn-hedged, she strode on ahead of him. They had put two-thirds of the journey behind them, when Alexander suggested, "Let's rest hyar a spell. Hit's a right good place ter pause an' eat a sneck."

They rested on a pinnacle where time-corroded shoulders of sandstone broke eruptively through the soil.

"Alexander." Jerry said, with his heart in his eyes, "ye're ther purtiest gal I reckon anybody ever seed."

The tense in her came to the surface. "Another feller likened me ter a comet amourst small stars, Jerry."

"I reckoe I kin hazard a ruess who thet feller war." he answered soberly. "Alexander—ver knows ther way I loves ye. Ie kain't fathom ther full extent of hit all, but ye knows some small extent of hit. I'm good transcent."

Had Jerry known it he was at that noment nearer to stirring the girl in the way that Halloway had stirred her than he had ever been before, but her reply came in a grave and low pitched voice.

Jerry bade Alexander farewell after depositing her parcel by the threadbare seat of the battered day coach which was to carry her to Perry Center, but as he said goodby he was, for once, acting without candor. He meant to go to Perry Center, too, but being called by no business, except to follow her, he thought it wiser to make no announcement of his intention. When the engine wheezed and groaned to its start, Jerry swung him-

"He said he knowed all erbout him -but thet a question like thet ough rightfully ter be put ter a man fust-handed."

But she did not tell Jerry what lay back of this whole discussion. She did not confide to him the mystery of a coat with a patched lining. It had been a very old coat, though at one time, long ago, a good one, and already it had been patched and repatched. When Alexander had picked it up that night before Halloway's departure its interpretations. at up that night before Halloway's departure, its inner breast pocket had sprend a bit at the top, and her eyes had glimpsed a discolored tailor's label—bearing the words, "New York." She had gone to her own room and read there the full legend—almost obliterated by wear. "Mr. J. C. Halloway," was written in ink with a number on Fifth avenue, New York. Then there was the tailor's name and adress—also on that main thoroughquestion," she announced, slowly, "but I've done decided not ter do hit. This thread hain't suited ter ther job. I'll get me another spool."

Alexander, his niece, and Jerry O'Keefe, slid from their saddles and the three walked through a wide gate, over a set of wagon scales and into the yard of the huge structure.

"Kinderly looks ter me like ye'd done deesigned hit fer a fort ter fight In'jins," suggested O'Keefe and the guide nodded his iron-gray hend. "Hit don't hurt none ter hev a house like thet solid-timbered," he asserted. Drawing a key from his pocket he took them into the small office, and showed them the spaciously dimensioned interior. There were no windows save high overhead, and only two doors. One of these was a great sliding affair where the wagons backed up, and the other was small but equally solid. It was a huge box of heavy timber, most of it constituting the bin itself. They climbed a ladder and looked down into the reservoir partly filled with golden grain, and Jerry, noticing a coil of rope hanging from an upright, inquired: "Did ye hev a lynchin' in hyar by way of housewarmin'?"

McGivins laughed, but his narrative had not yet come to the uses of that rope, and he refused to be burried.

In the first game, starting at 12 oscietes, the Vanderbilt Commodores are heavy favorites over their opponents from the Citadel. Vandy had a great run of victories at the start of their collegiate schedule, but like most their collegiate schedule, but like most of their brothers-in-arms, ran foul of reverses. Of late, however, the Commodores have struck their winning stride and should go far.

The purpose of the conference is to better athletics in every way. It is the intention of the conference to organize so thoroughly and to function so efficiently, that sports in the south will assume even a higher plane than will assume even a higher plane than they now occupy.

An outgrowth of the conference will probably be the arranging of a conference track meet. The S. I. A. A meet will be held this year in Louisiana, and many of the track coaches in this part of the country are unwilling for their athletes to participate in a meet in such a climate. Tech, for one, has decided not to enter the S. I. A. A. meet on account of the climatic conditions in Louisiana. In case the conference decides to hold a track meet, Tech will invite iana. In case the conference decides to hold a track meet, Tech will invite the colleges to be her guests. Granting that they accept the offer, Atlanta will have the largest and best track meet that has ever been presented to the public. Practically all the colleges in the south, southeast and middle Atlantic section will be represented.

Rest For Quintet.

Thursday was a day of rest for Coach Alex's basketball men. In preparation of the meet, a general holiday was declared. Even at this late date, Coach Alex is undecided as to his quota. Jenks, Dennicks, Matheson, Eckford, Staton, Roane and Murphy are sure to enter. The eighth man will either be Roger Malone, a guard, or Jimmy Brewster. If the doctor thinks that Jimmy's leg will stand the strain, he will be entered; if not, Malone will go in. A final inspection of the injured member will be made Friday morning.

of the injured member will be made Friday morning.

If we show any stuff at all, we ought to go to the semi-finals. Tonight at 8 o'clock, we meet the Miss. Aggies. So far, so good. They have shown nothing remarkable this season, and any kind of good work ought to put us on the top. But, of course, you can never tell how Tech will play.

Granting, merely for the sake of something to write about, that we do beat Mississippi, that would put us in the second round with W. and L., but the Generals have retired from the scene of combat. So that would automatically place us in the would automatically place us in the third round against the winner of the South Carolina-Wofford bout, which by all rights should be Carolina. Now, figuring strictly from the standpoint of dope, Tech should beat Carplina. If they should achieve the probable, Tech will go to the semi-final round. The opponents in case our dreams come true, will probably be Kentucky. The Tech game begins at So'clock sharp, so be on hand.

Some Baseball Talk.
The official baseball season opens on March 23 with Clemson. That is about thirty days off, as the crow flies. FINAL WORK

In meeting the University of Georgia quintet, Oglethorpe realizes she is going against some of the truest steel in the south. Georgia is doped to defeat the Petrels by a comparative by large score, but Oglethorpe will enter the fray determined to give her best and her all, to stop the warriors who represent the Red and Black. What more can one ask? To stop Georgia is not impossible, it is easily within the reach of human effort.

First Varsity Squad.

The men who will honor and be honored by their university as the first varsity squad that ever represented Oglethorpe in any intercollegiate basketball game are all freshmen. They are Jackson, captain; Wyatt. Harmon, Roberts, Tucker. Morrow, Garner and Minhinnett. If

This battle tonight will find two teams using the same style of play, each employing the far-famed five-man defense. Oglethorpe will, no doubt, play a defensive game, and attempt to hold Georgia's score as low

Roberts Is Star.

The "Stormy Petrels" should, through the ability of Roberts, hold her own at center. To date Roberts has failed to meet his superior in jumping. He has gone against some of the tallest men of the state and has, as yet, not met his Waterloo. Captain Jackson has played sensational ball at guard and is a dribbler of rare ability. Who knows, the opportunity to pierce Georgia's defense might be in this line.

WHEAT DECLINES

Chicago, February 23.—Persistent selling due to rains in the southwest made wheat today average lower in price. The market closed unsettled at 3-4 to 15-8: net decline, with May $1.44 to $1.44 1-8 and July $1.24 3-4 to $1.24 7-8. Corn finished 1-2 to 1 1-8c@1 1-4c up, oats unchanged to 1-2c higher, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 35c advance.

We've been was a led to a material seback in the contract of the contract o wheat prices here at the opening, but sentiment among traders became much divided later as a result of talk that ice was forming over the fields be-cause of zero temperatures which had followed the rain. With quotations at Liverpool and Buenos Aires showing comparative strength, an upturn in prices here ensued. However, the rise brought about increased efferings from commission houses, and carried values downward again during most of the remainder of the session. The fact that Chicago wheat prices were so high as to encourage shipments here from Kansas City was responsible for some of the late selling. Notice was also taken of an investee of 1642 000 also taken of an increase of 1,642,000 tushels for the week in the world's

New high prices for the season were reached in the corn market. Expectance of a decided falling off in the amount of corn arriving in Chicago was largely responsible.

The oats market was governed for the most part by the action of corn.

Provisions ruled higher in line with hog values despite a good deal of castern selling, which grew out of closing of spreads between lard and cotton seed oil.

"But in the case of Radney and McCracken, two convicts now serving life sentences for the murder of Henry Jones, in the county of Colquitt, it has become necessary for me to depart from that practice by reason of certain misrepresentations of my position in the matter which have repeatedly appeared in the newspapers and in private conversations.

"Recently there was an article in the Macon Telegraph representing me as having arried to the jury at the trial of this case that I would recommend a pardon for these prisoners after they had served as much as one year. Of course, every person present at the trial knows that this is untrue. I do not, of course, blame the Macon Telegraph for the misrepresentation, but presume that its correspondent got his information from a source which it believed to be reliable. What that source was, I do not know.

"I am also told that about the time these applications were filed with the prison commission, an article appeared in the Moultrie Observer that both the solicitor-general, and I believe that it was certainly untrue in so far as it related to solicitor-general, and I believe that it was certainly untrue in so far as it related to the reporter, but assume that he got his information from a source which it begins to the property of the prison commission, an article appeared in the moultrie Observer that both the solicitor-general, and I believe that it was certainly untrue in so far as it related to the reporter, but assume that he got his information from a source which he believed to be reporter, but assume that he got his information from a source which he believed to be reporter, but assume that he got his information from a source which he believed to be reporter, but assume that he got his information from a source which he believed to be reporter, but assume that he got his information from a source which he believ

New York, February 28.—(Special, following were the ruling quotations American Cotton and Grain Exchange Thursday:

New York, February 23.-A very sharp advance followed reports that only seventeen notices had been issued in the cotton_market here this morning. All old crop positions made new high ground for the movement, with May selling up to 18.44, representing a recovery of 266 points from the low price of late last month and an advance of 53 points from the closing quotations on Tuesday. PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, February 23—(Special)—Small offerings from America and better reports from India regarding the political situation there caused a higher market in Liverpool today as comparatively few notices for March were issued this morning. Our market more than met the improvement abroad, advancing to new high levels here. Sufficient realizing was met to check the market and cause a decline to around the opening prices on reports of good rains in west Texas and more free offerings of spot cotton. Sentiment is generally mired as the trade feel that no sustained advance can be maintained as long as the American mills do not enter the market; on the other hand, the steady decline in the visible supply is reflected in the diappearance of contracts in this market. From now on we must expect many sharp resctions, but we still believe the general tendency will be upward.

Will Aid Investors

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, February 23.—The toll of brokerage house failures was unusually heary today. Four firms, none of them members of the New York stock exchange, announced their inability to meet commitments. These were J. W. Ball & Co., Rasmussen & Co., Kardos & Burke, and S. S. Ruska & Co.

ese added to the failures during the past few months brings the total to more than a score. The suspensions have done much to shake the confidence of the people, as most people are unable to distinguish between the good and the shady houses. It will be a good thing in the long run, provided the bucket shops are driven out of business for all time, but there is always a possibility that some day they may resume business under a different name as has been the case on many occa sions before. One house reports that it has lost about three hu accounts within the past few weeks. The house is one whose reliability has never been questioned and cannot be questioned because of its fair business methods. But the taking out of the accounts by people who had their stocks paid for, indicates that some investors are skeptical. There is nothing to fear of the good houses.

Chandler Motors led the automobile stocks today. It jumped several points. The rise in the stock was by insiders who were desirous of bringing it more in line with the seiling price of Studebaker which is selling on a 7 per cent basis while Chandler is selling on a 9 per cent basis. Chandler is making good progress with its new car. That the motor companies are selling cars is indicated by the fact that some of them are now working on full time.

Directors of the National Enameling and Stamping company at their meeting today passed the dividend on the common stock. Last year the company paid 6 per cent on this security. The regular dividend at the rate of 1% per cent has been declared on the preferred for the full year 1922. According to reports in the financial district it is stated that the company may do some financing in the form of a note issue within the near future.

United Retnil Stores was again weak during the greater part of the trading foday when the rest of the market was firm. The decline was said to be due to one of those bear attacks generally witnessed when G. J. Whelan, president of the Columbia Graphophone company, in commenting on the court's action in refusing to appoint a receiver, said "the present management is doing everything possible to protect the interests of the stockholders, and so far their efforts have met with success. The company's inventory is being liquidaded as rapidly as the market will permit. The sales and distributing organization has been held intact and overhead expenses and salaries have been cut to the lowest possible figures."

While Steel has been advancing eight points, other leading steel stocks shev stood stationary, and even now there are plain indications that the other steels will follow their leader. As a class the steel companies are not miking money, and their situation is such as not to attract speculative buying. Washington, February 23 .- A general extension of time for the filing of income tax returns was granted corporations today by Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair.

Corporations are given up to June 15 under a new treasury decision for completing returns of income for the calendar year 1921, the fiscal year ended January 31, 1922, and the fiscal year ending February 28, 1922. The extension is conditioned upon corporations filing tentative returns by March 15, April 15 and May 15, 1922, according to the yearly basis used, accompanied with one-fourth of the estimated amount of the tax due.

Extension in the time for filing corporation income tax returns was granted, officials said, because of the delay in the preparation of new treasury regulations covering income and profits taxes. These regulations which will cover payment of these taxes under the new revenue law are expected to be ready about March 1.

SALVAGED COTTON SOLD IN PLAINS

Americus, Ga., February 23.—(Special.)—Cotton salvaged from the Timmerman & Wise warehouse annex, which was destroyed by fire at Plains, was sold to Oliver McDonald Co., of that place for $9,500.

The cotton, comprising three hundred damaged bales, was sold under sealed bids by court order, and bids were submitted by concerns located at Savannah, Forsyth, Atlanta, Richland, Columbus, Griffin and Montgomery. Columbus, Griffin and Montgomery Proceeds of the sale are to be divided among the owners of the cotton, it 1 said, according to the loss sustained by the several individuals owning cotton stored in the burned ware-house.

FRENCH ISSUES LEAD IN BOND TRADE THURSDAY

New York, February 23 .- Stimulated by the further advance of exchange rates on Paris. French government issues were among the leaders of today's active and more diversified bond market. United Kingdoms eased, despite the continued strength of ster-ling exchange, but Belgian, Swedish, Danish and Japanese bonds were among the other prominent and high-er international issues.

Many speculative, or low priced domestic rails enhanced recent gains. Foremost among these were the Missouri, Kansas and Texas series, St. Louis, San Francisco, St. Paul, Denver and Rio Grande, and Erie. Liberty hands were firm, but the enerty bonds were firm, but the entire list eased towards the finish on the reaction in the stock market. Total sales, par value, $16,775,000.

CHANDLER HOLDS 21-2 POINTS GAIN

New York, February 23 .- The stock market today rose almost steadily in its early and intermediate stages to higher levels on the largest and most varied dealings of the year, but fell back sharply in the final hour. The reaction followed an advance in call money from 5 to 6 per cent.

Gains ranging from large fractions to 1 1-2 points were made at the outset. Advances were extended to as much as 6 points before profit-taking and the money flurry made pronounced impression.

A large part of the increased business evidently originated from professional sources and orders received by commission houses over the holiday. These were augmented by short covering, epecially in steels, equip-

Many of those issues achieved highest prices of the year, United States Steel being the most conspicuous ex-ample, but that stock forfeited its gain of 1 5-8 points, closing unchanged. Chandler Motor at a net rise of 2 1-2 points and Canadian Pacific at a net of 3 1-4 points, were among pressure. Passing of the dividend on Repubic Iron and Steel preferred because of uncertain business conditions was announced at the close of the market. Other developments of the day, such as better trade prospects and more fuvorable railroad earnings, were among the factors which gave impe-tus to the long account.

International credits were again influenced by the strength of British exchange, demand sterling making another, new top at 4.41 1-4, as much as 4.42 being quoted for cables. Attack Exchange.

Officials of Ruskay & Co., announcing their temporary suspension on the Consolidated exchange, accuse the New York stock exchange of indirectly causing their suspension. United News Staff Correspondent.

New York, February 23.—Five more stock brokerage concerns have been forced to the wall in twenty-four hours as a result of the efforts of the public prosecutor, the New York stock exchange, the Consolidated and the New York curb market to "clean up Wall street."

Total liabilities of the five suspended firms will approximate $5,000,000.

Assets except in the case of Ruskay & Co. are believed to be purely nominal.

The five firms, whose suspension followed rapidly on each other's heels, are:

Kardos & Burke, liabilities, $1,500,000.

leans cotton exchanges may be regu-lated as to their dealings in futures. He warned the lawmakers present as the conference that while it might lie in the power of the government to regulate the New York and New Or-leans exchanges, that Havre, Liverpool and other foreign exchanges could not be regulated.

Improve Grade.

"You are here to devise a system of education for both white and colored that will teach them to properly grow cotton of high grades." said Colonel Hester. "Your aim should be to do away with trash or unspinnable cotton. You will also have to devise some method whereby the public can be enlightened and enlist the aid of the national and state governments.

(At the Atlants)

There's a charm about the Hawaiian Islands, Pacific ocean possessions of the United States, that lingers despite the fact that they have been the theme of song and story for years past, and in "A Daughter of the Sun." which opened a week-end engagement at the Atlanta theater Thursday night, Lorin Howard and Ralph T. Kettering, co-authors, have produced a play that accentuates that charm to its fullest possibilities.

The plot of the play is hung on a love story of true tropical fervor, and the handling of the theme is done in to lovers of the throbbing music of the islands, there is nothing disappointing in this detail. Loa, Daughter of the Sun, dominates the play an is most acceptable to the audience. Others who play their parts with ability are W. A. Neville, as Colonel Clay; Lester Paul, as Dr. Oagi Sankura; Jack McKenna, as Dr. Grant; William Loughran, as the high priest; Miss Gail Sheldon, as Virgie Lee, the Broadway girl, and Nan Shelton, as Hope Clay.

"A Daughter of the Sun" will be at the Atlanta Friday and Saturday nights, with a Saturday matinee. Admission prices are lower than usual, and in its line, the show is acceptable in every way.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyrie.) Some new ways and some old ways are presented in "The Love Game," offered as the headline act the last half of the week at Kelth's Lyric. The lines in the skit are clever, but, above that, the roles are assumed to advantage by the quartet which enacts the comedy. While their comedy was not nearly as good as their singing, the Monarch Comedy quartet has a good offering, and Thursday night was given considerable applause. The bass singer of the quartet is especially good. a very clever manner. The cast is large, including a troup of native Ha-waiian musicians, and the girls who sport in stage-effect moonlight on a coral beach are not at all hard to bass singer of the quartet is especially good.

Most of the darktown acts presented here in recent weeks are outshone by the monologue work of Bert Kenny and Nobody. Kenny would have dispensed with the Nobody in his title, for Nobody is brought into the monologue extensively, to the merriment of the audience.

A cycling oddity is offered by MacRae and Clegg, which is really an oddity and departs from the stereotyped cycling act.

The bill is preceded by silversheet news.

ing in their offerings. Sonia is an exceptional dancer and her company are singers and instrumentalists of ability.

The Gray Sisters, held over as an added attraction from the first half of the week, have made an entire change of program, introducing new songs and dances, which are fully as appealing as those used Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Hart, Wagner and Eltis, in their original concoction, "Going to the Opera," get a great many laughs with their original comedy, introduced in connection with several well-rendered song numbers.

Other acts are Frank Whittler and Company in a one-act comedy entanglement, "In Wrong," in which Frank Whittler as a drunker character, makes a decided hit; Melville and Stetson, in musical specialties, and Abala and Adrienne, acrobats, whose twists and twirls are far above the ordinary.

The feature of the long screen bill is Maurice Flynn, in "Smiles Are Trumps."

DEPUTY SHERIFF DOWIS IS BROUGHT

Deputy Sheriff Victor Dowis, lodged since last Monday in the Gwinnett county jail at Lawrenceville, charzed with having shot and killed Joe and Oris Simpson, brothers, of that county. Monday afternoon, was brought by officers to the Fulton county Tower for safekeeping just before midnight Thursday.

It is alleged that the deputy opened fire on the brothers in their automobile when they resisted his attempt to search the car for whisky. The killing occurred near Duluth, Ga.

Deputies who accompanied the prisoner to the Tower would make no statement and Dowis would not talk.

One of the most tangible proofs of the connection of the drug peddlers the connection of the drug peddlers with the crime is their almost complete desertion of Los Angeles. Characters known to the police as dope peddling suspects, have dropped out of sight, from the cheap "alley" peddlers to the pair, one an actress formerly employed by the Lasky corporation and the other a song writer, who are alleged to have made a small fortune from their opium den and "snow" traffic.

They have fled this city like rats from a sinking ship. All of them could not have been involved in the murder, the police know, but the all knew of the crime and their disappear.

On Right Track.

Now, with the story of Fields, that he drove the murder car to the Taylor bungalow and waited while a Chinaman, two white men and a woman went into the house; that he heard a shot; that he saw the gun buried, and that he received $900 for his part in the tragedy, investigators are fairin the tragedy, investigators are fair-ly sure that they are on the right track. Investigators also attempted to track down the men and women nam ' by down the men and women nam ' by Fields. The names were not made public, and, it is said, Fields only knew the woman in the party by her

The story told by Fields is the first concrete lead the investigators have had since the murder. If his "confession" proves false, the hunt for the murderer will be back where it started —except for the belief that Taylor was the victim of a dope ring.

Under actual fire in the trenches at intervals covering a period of more than 18 months was the nerveracking experience of Lillian and Dorothy Gish, noted motion picture stars, who, with their mother, accompanied David Wark Griffith to the very front line trenches of France to secure the important scenes for "Hearts of the World," the new Griffith masterpiece,' pow at the Forsyth.

The Gish family, with Robert Harron, Josephine Crowell, Kate Bruce, Master Ben Alexander (6 years of age), Robert Anderson, George Fawcett, George A. Siegmann and others who appear in "Hearts of the World," were under bombardment on three separate occasions, and in one instance the attack lasted for four hours. It is interesting also to learn that Mr. Griffith was the first American to enter the front line trenches. This was, of course, before the United States entered the world war.

Washington, February 23.—The senate failed today to decide what it would do with the resolution of Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, providing for an investigation in alleged political activities of the Federal Repointcal activities of the rederal Reserve bank of Atlanta. It argued intermittently on the subject for several hours, finally rejecting Mr. Heflin's motion to send the resolution to the committee on senate expenses, but failing to reach a conclusion as to whether it should be turned over to the benking and currency committee. the banking and currency committee to determine whether proposed investi-gation was warranted or necessary. Called up by its sponsor, the resolution broke open anew the controversy centering about the policies and ad-ministration of the federal reserve board. Much of the discussion was a repetition of the previous arguments, although Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, contended that in asking that the measure be sent to the banking committee he had hoped that the discussion there might determine whether the investigation was advis-

Those senators who urged that the resolution be sent to the committee controlling the senate's expenditures declared that should it be given into the hands of the banking committee, it never would be heard of again. Sen-ator Heflin pointed out that Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, whose speech in defense of the reserve board and system, it was charged, had been sent broadcast in the south by the Atlanta bank, was a member of the banking committee.
